Spain would have voluntarily chosen, to sanction an example of transatlantic independence. The finances of France were any thing in t prosperous, and she had to support, unaided, the expense of the fleets and armies which she sent to our assistance. Great difficulties, it was supposed, would attend the cooperation of a French army with American forces on land. Congress was jealous of the introduction of a foreign soldiery into the interior of the country, and Washington himself gave but a reluctant consent to the measure. Considerable discontent had arisen in connection with Count d Estaings movements in Rhode Island, which, --had it not been allayed by the prudent and effectual mediation of Lafayette, --would, as has been already stated, probably have prevented a French army from being sent over to the United States. Such were the feelings, on both sides of the ocean, when...
