Not illustrated. 1813 Excerpt: .of the last Rubric, at the end of the communion of the sick. But if a sick man either by reason of extremity of sickness, or for want of warning in due time to the curate, or for want of company to receive with him, or by any other just impediment, do not receive the sacrament of Christ's body and blood; the curate shall instruct him, that if he do truly repent him of his sins, and stedfastly believe that Jesus Christ hath suffered death upon the cross for him, and shed his blood for his redemption; earnestly remembering the benefits he hath thereby, and giving him thanks therefor; he doth eat and drink the body of our Saviour profitably to his soul's health, although he do not receive the sacrament with his mouth. The true meaning of the words verily and indeed, as only intimating a strong and repeated asseveration, is best explained by our Lord, in the passage whence they were taken: AlyJtesh is meat indeed, and my blood is drink indeed, John vi, 55, which he afterwards explains in a figurative or spiritual sense: The jlesh profiteth nothing: the words which I speak unto you, they are tpirit and they are life, John vi, 63. And surely these texts confirm, by the highest authority, the foregoing passages of the Catechism, Articles, and Rubric. It still remains, therefore, for the advocates of Romish faith, first to prove...
